People Protecting Communities

Protecting Today... Preserving Tomorrow

People Protecting Communities is a growing regional coalition of concerned residents, business owners, students and property owners. We are committed to protecting the health and safety of citizens and preserving the environment for sustainable uses in Pennsylvania by stopping the massive landfill and possible incinerator proposed for the western edge of Centre County in Rush Township.

We invite you to join us in this endeavor.

Others who have been successful in their fights against projects that threaten their communities have had strong support. For this reason, we seek to build our membership and ask you to join us. Time, money, and hard work are needed. The suggested membership fee is $5. If this is a hardship, please be assured that you are welcome to join at no cost. As a member of PPC you will receive current information about this project, advance notification of public meetings, access to sample letters, and our alerts. Donations are greatly appreciated.

The greater the membership, the greater the voice, and the greater the influence with officials and decisionmakers who can stop this project.

Please complete this short membership form and mail it to:
